FRIDAY EVENING, DECEMBER 7.

FIVE WEEKS AS IN A DREAM .- The phy sicians at the city hospital, Jersey City have a case in their care which they rigard ac exceptional and a most interesting subject for study-that of a woman who has been in a comatoss condition for nearly five weeks. Her name is Silk, and she is fortythree years old. Her bushaud and her self were hard drinkers, and in a drunken row he assaulted her and beat her into insensibility, and she lay for some time at her home without apparent hope of recovery. This was on the night of October 80th. She was taken to the hospi tal, and has remained unconscious ever since her arrival, without any lucid intervals. Dr. McFarland says that at times she murmurs like one disturbed by troublesome dreams, and sometimes will open her eyes but does not seem to recognize anyone, not even knowing her daughter, who visited her on Thanksgiving. At times she seems at the point of death and again she is delirious. The doctor says she will go for two or three weeks without nourishment, and about all they are able to feed her is a little milk Dr. McFarland says the case appears to be one of alcoholism The doctor thinks that her chance of recovery is small, and even if her bodily health is restored, her mind will be wrecked. The woman's hus band is still in the city prison awaiting the result of her injuries.-N. Y Press.

WILD DOGS OF ASSAM .- Wherever dogs run wild, as in Australia and in Iodia, they show many of the characteristics of wolves They have a similar habit of hunting in packs. The people of Assam tell wonderful stories of the cunning and sagacity of these wild hounds when in pursuit of game. They say that when a pack goes out to hunt, an old dog goes in front and searches for fresh scent of a deer. Having found this he starts off alone, and when he has ascertained the whereabouts of the quarra raturns to the pack, which he then disposes in a circle of a mile in diameter around it; each member of the pack has a part allotted to him. These precautions having been taken, the old general starts alone once more in search of the victim, and on finding it gives chase. The startled deer of course flees from his enemy, who follows, giving tongue as a signal to the rest of the pack. The deer, for outstripping the dog, rushes on, but is suddenly met in front by one of the outlying dogs, who gives The deer, of course, turning to the right or left, again rushes off, only to be met and turned by another dog. Thus, turned at every point, the poor animal becomes more and more exhausted, while the pack gradually closes in upon it, leaving no avenue of escape, and dezens of sharp fauga soon feast on the victim which has in this way been run to dea b .- Youth's Companion.
